NATA State Advocacy Network Aims To Protect Member Interests At The State And Local Levels

NATA's State Advocacy Network (SAN) is an effort that aims to increase awareness of state and local issues among the general industry and highlights ongoing state legislation, events and opportunities for NATA members to raise issues or pose questions or concerns for association and industry assistance.

As you know, a host of issues including airport and land use, security, taxation, aircraft noise and emissions, and other priorities that arise confront aviation businesses daily. Volunteers of the network will play an important role in the association's efforts to stimulate and encourage greater involvement among its members with the goal being to build a strong network to defeat unwarranted policies. The network's website is a platform to gain awareness and support for issues facing members and their businesses, and it provides news and updates on ongoing state legislation.

If your business or state is experiencing local industry problems that require the association's support, to view a list of SAN volunteers, or if you hear of problems that may arise and need more information, contact the State Advocacy Network via email at SAN@nata.aero or by calling (800) 808-6282.
