

Critical Illness Insurance

FAQs

Designed for professional pilots and their families, this policy can help with unexpected expenses if you or a loved one is diagnosed with a covered condition. This coverage is administered by Harvey Watt & Co. and is available through MetLife.

What is Critical Illness Insurance?

When you receive a serious diagnosis, this coverage can be there to quickly help cover the many new expenses life throws at you.

Why is it important?

Studies show that about 41% of adults report having debt due to medical bills. Around half of those surveyed would rely on their personal savings should they become too sick or injured at work, but 57% of adults in the U.S. are uncomfortable with the amount of emergency savings they currently have.

How does it work?

This insurance provides you with a lump sum payment, directly to you when you or your loved ones first receive a covered diagnosis. This assists with any expenses you may incur from co-pays and deductibles to childcare, mortgage, and groceries.

More questions?

Email us at insuranceprograms@nata.aero.